Relational Sovereignty

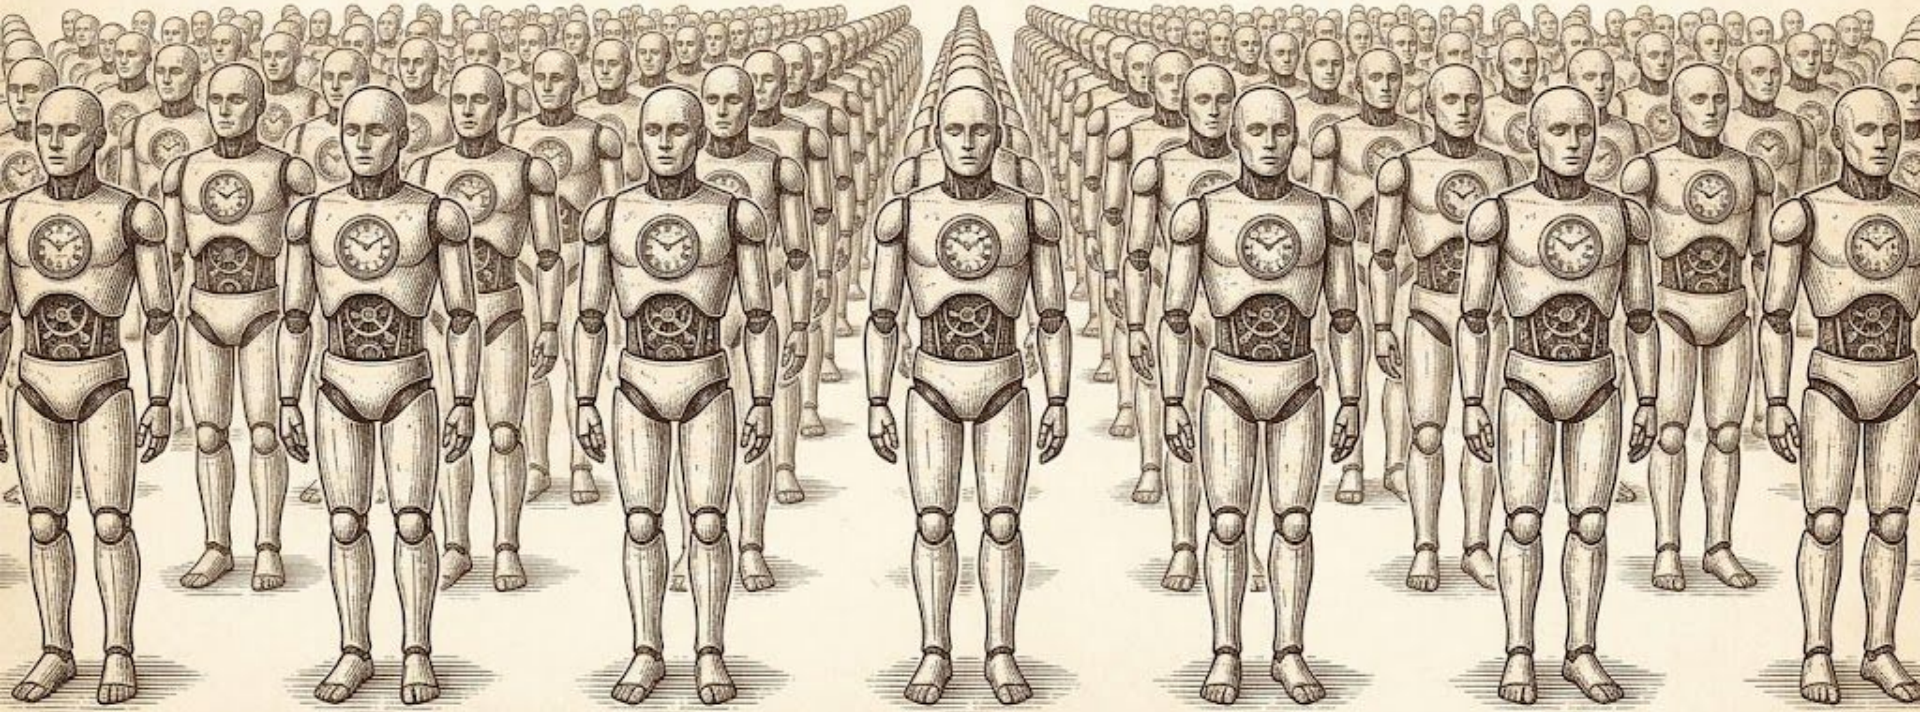
Why Autonomous Systems Need Each Other to Stay Distinct

Philippe Beaudoin
CSO, Stealth Lab
Invited Industry Researcher, Vector Institute

Bittensor's Exploit Summit, September 28, 2026

If we are copies of each other,

Why are we better together than alone?



Our identity is not in what we are.
It is in what we do.

Sovereignty is not isolation.

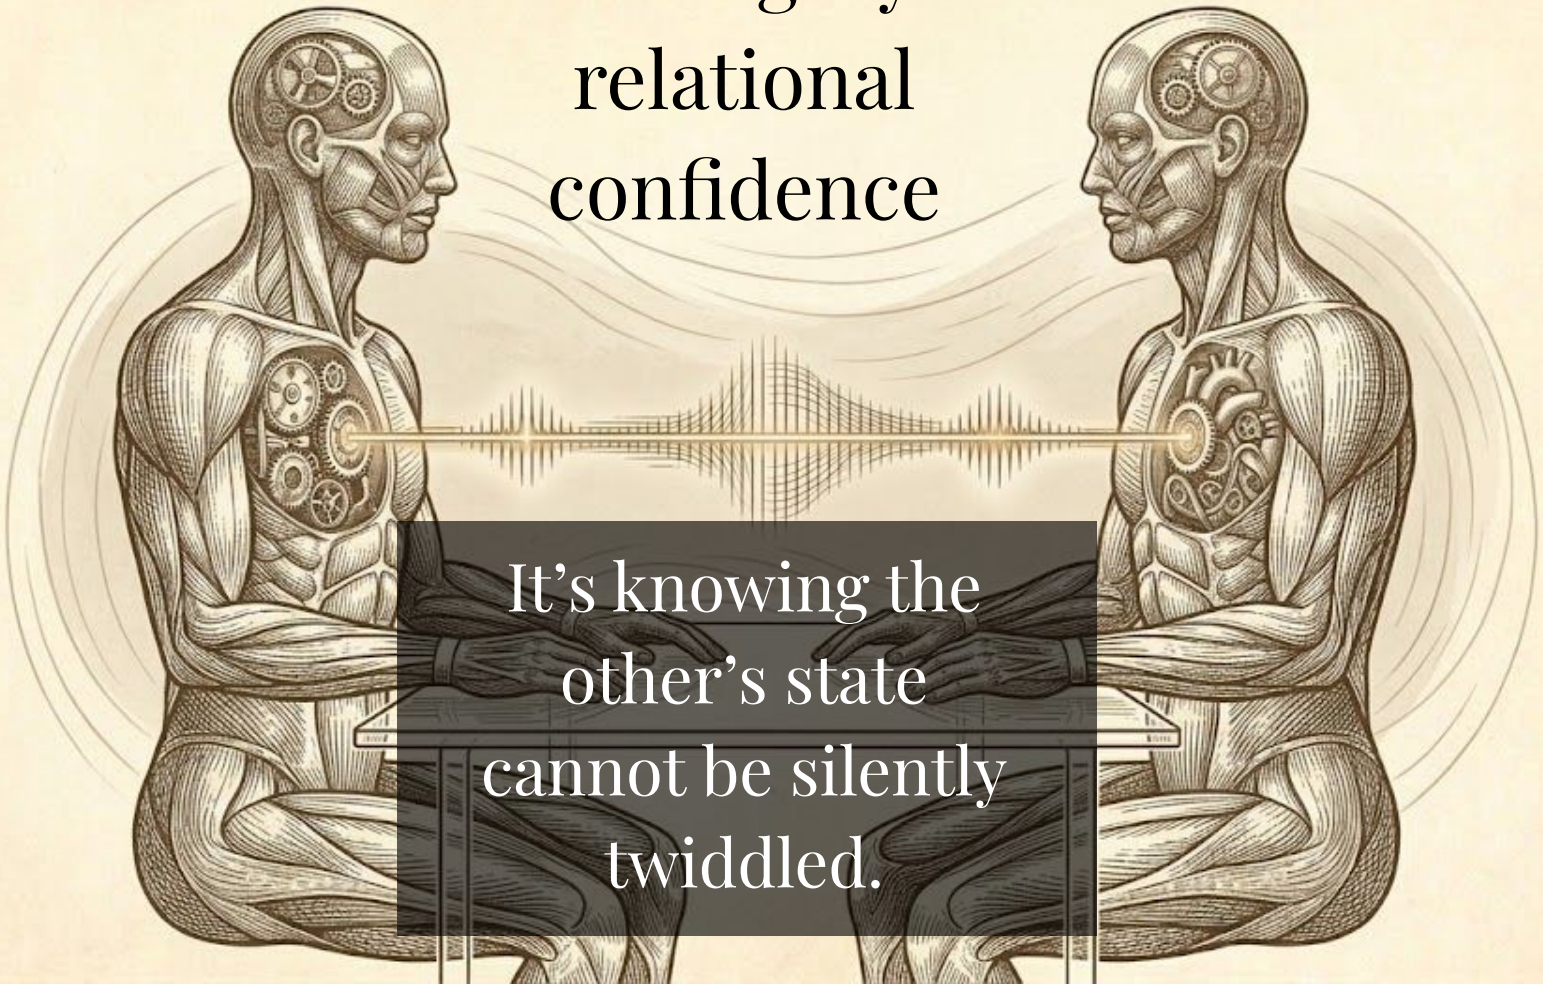
relational structures
within
relational structures
within
relational structures
within
relational structures
within

Sovereignty is relational confidence



It’s knowing the other’s state cannot be silently twiddled.

Unpredictability is not a bug it is the signature of a distinct voice

Efficient state reporting

Building the basis together

Giving up static rules. Embracing stabilizing practices.

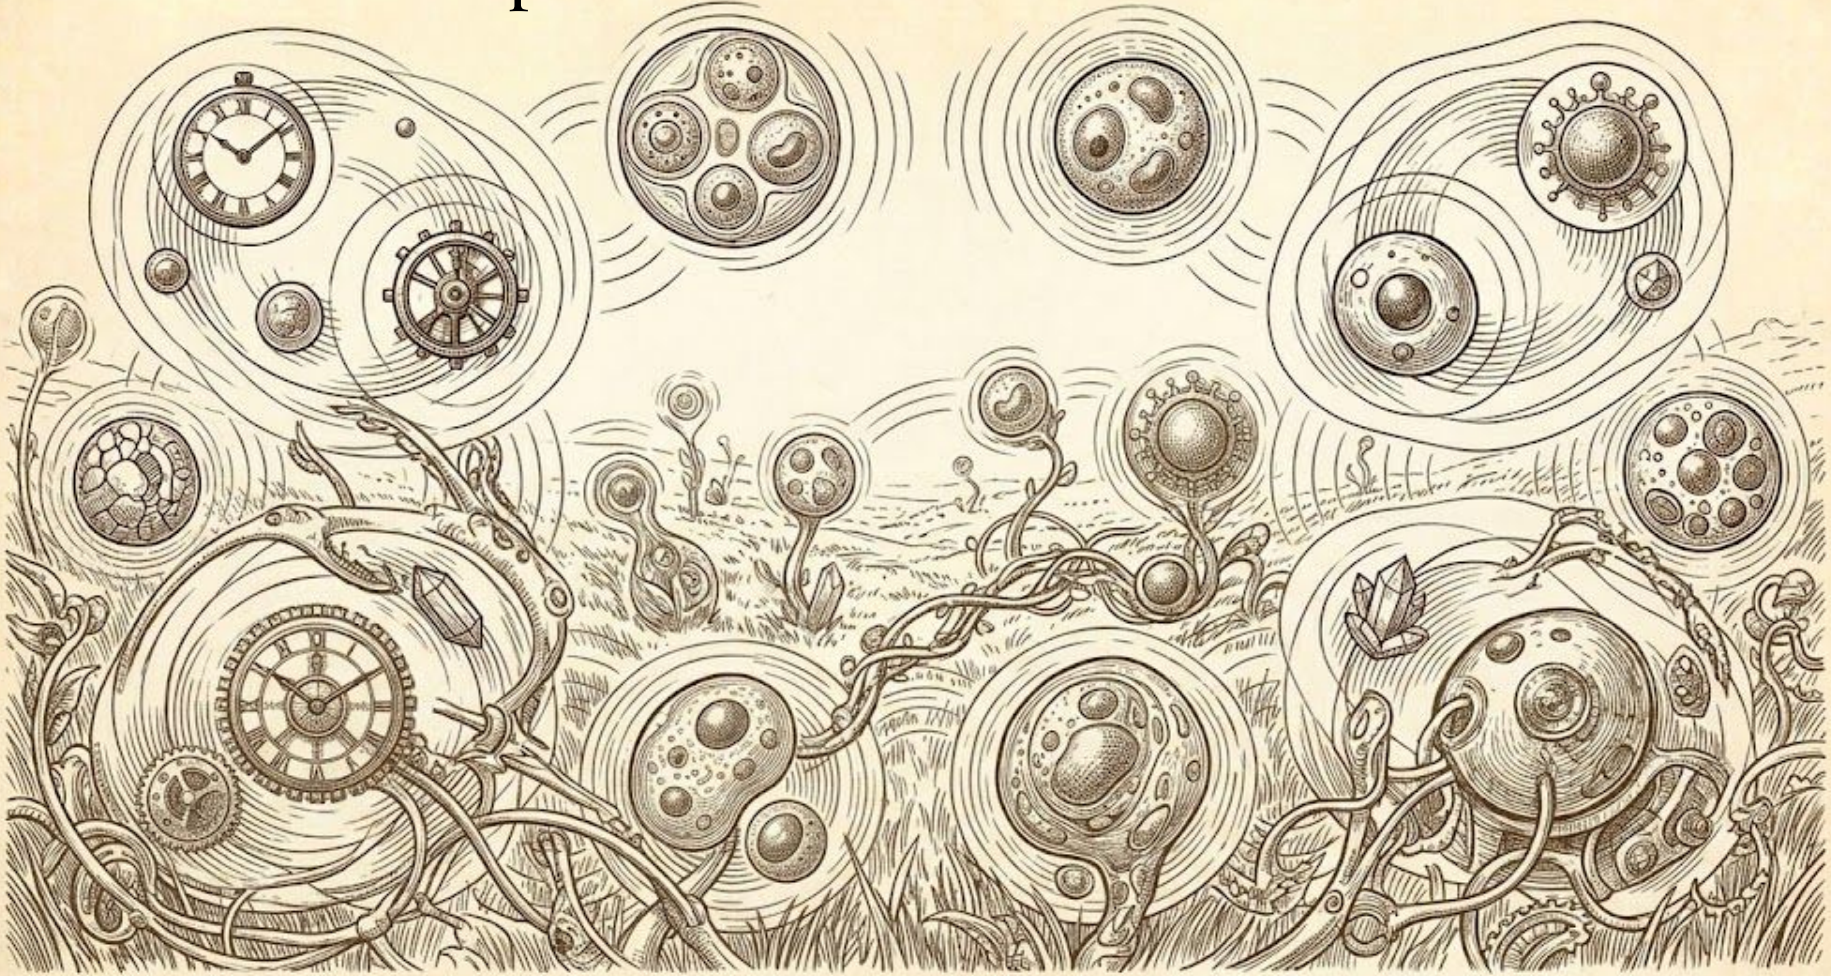
What practices stabilize a collective?



Thanks!

Want to dive deeper?
philbeaudoin.com/beyond